and possessions in a Tuesday night fire, but the department has problems of its own which made fighting the fire more difficult.

According to Volunteer Fire Department Chief Danny Mitchell, the home of Melva Mons and her son, Donald Gebaidi, was totally destroyed in a blaze that apparently began when a vent fan shortcircuited. Hancock County Fire Marshal Jay Marsh is continuing an investigation into the cause of the fire.

Mitchell credited the rescue of the home's occupants to Stanley Mons, the woman's other son, who lives about two blocks away. He told volunteer firefighters that he had come into the house and found smoke coming from the vent fan.

"I was told that the only things that survived the fire were a push-type wheel chair and a spoon. The man had an electric wheelchair but it burned up in the fire, and I understand he was making a sandwich or something at the time and had the spoon in his hand when his brother got him out of the house," Mitchell said.

Catahoula man charged in assault BY TRACI BONNEY

A Picayune man is being held on $20,000 bond in the Hancock County jail on a charge of aggravated assault, according to Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson.

Richard Kenny Carroll, 39, of the Catahoula community in northwest Hancock County, was arrested and charged with aggravated assault late Saturday night after allegedly tying his wife, Dianne Carroll, to a bed and beating her from head to toe with a wooden object, then slashing his own arms repeatedly.

Peterson said Carroll went to Gulfport Memorial Hospital to have the stab wounds treated, then called his father, Rubin W. Carroll, who turned him in to the sheriff's department and reported that Carroll had told him of the incident.

Mrs. Carroll was taken by ambulance to Crosby Memorial Hospital in Pearl River County, then airlifted by helicopter to Forrest General Hospital in Hattiesburg, where she remains in critical condition but is showing improvement in the intensive care unit.

Carroll made an initial court appearance Tuesday morning, where bond was set. A preliminary hearing is planned for early May.

Investigator Nathan Hoda and deputies Terry Robinson and Clay Sick were in charge of the investigation.

Hoda reported that the top of a wooden walking cane, with a brass duck head attached, was found at the scene, along with several beer and whiskey bottles and ropes tied to the foot of the bed.

He said Carroll and his wife apparently had been separated for some time when the incident occurred.

Hoda added that April 20 was Richard Carroll's birthday and the couple's wedding anniversary.

MAN CHARGED WITH CAPITAL RAPE

A Bay St. Louis man has been arrested and charged with capital rape in connection with a Sunday incident involving a female under the age of 14.

According to Bay St. Louis Police Department Detective Tom Burleson, Devon Washington, 27, of 244 Ballentine St., Bay St. Louis, was arrested at about 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Burleson stated that Washington has been jailed without bond and that the investigation is continuing.

Do you ever think that perhaps the planet will one day be covered in trash and garbage? As concern grows about the environment and finding ways to preserve it, local recycling efforts are increasing.

Reynolds Aluminum Recycling, which operates a plant in Louisiana, opened a community drop site in Waveland for aluminum cans about six months ago, according to a company spokesman.

He said the site has generated a very low volume of cans thus far.

Other local efforts, however, seem to be faring better.

Joanne Northridge of Gulf Coast Recycling said the center takes almost everything a person throws away in a normal Saturday 8 a.m. to noon.

Northridge listed five major categories of recyclable garbage: aluminum, glass, plastic, paper and cardboard. Then she broke each category into types of materials the center accepts.

The center will accept aluminum cans, pie pans and foil, as long as each type of aluminum item is separate. In other words, don't mix the cans with the pans.

Molpus releases tidelands map

Secretary of State Dick Molpus released the preliminary tidelands map that establishes what is public and private property along the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Some 200 parcels of filled tidelands now under private claim were determined to be public property using U.S. supreme Court guidelines. Most of those parcels are on the beach south of Hwy. 90.

No single-family homes fall on the public side of the boundary line.

"We said from the beginning of this process that a relatively small number of commercial developments would be affected, and this map bears that out," Molpus said. No one is affected who didn't already know or suspect that they would be. There are no

Crawfish boil to kick off youth center campaign

BY DENA BISNETTE The Hancock County Youth Task is trying to raise money for a youth center. In order to get some start-up money for a fundraising cam-paign, the task force will have a crawfish boil from 11 a.m. until-6 p.m. Saturday at the Hancock County Civic Center (the former fairgrounds building).

Tickets for the event are $5,.. except for children under age seven, who eat free. They are available at the gate, from all task force members, Bay St.

Plates are two and 1/2 pounds of crawfish and include boiled potatoes and corn on the cob. In addition, 25-cent hotdogs will also be available. Live music will be featured. According to Bay Police Officer Don Osco, a task force member who is in charge of the youth center project, said applications for the center committee will be available at the event. A $10 annual fee allows attendance and comment at meetings.

Osco said the committee is looking at several possible sites for the center, hoping to build a sports complex with soccer, baseball outdoor basketball courts, an indoor basketball court which can double as a dance hall, a lounge and a concession stand.

Eventually, he hopes to add two garages which older teenagers can use to work on their

Fire damages office

BY TRACI BONNEY

An early morning fire in the manager's office of Gulf Grove Apartments is under investigation by the Waveland Fire Department and city fire marshal Jay Marsh, according to department chief David Garcia.

Garcia said the fire appears to have started around the heater

The fire department responded to the fire at about 12:51 a.m. Monday, Garcia said. Two trucks with 12 firefighters arrived on the scene at 12:55 a.m.

The firefighters spotted flames coming from the upper section of the roof and the rear lower level. While one group of firefighters worked to extinguish the roof fire, the other group concentrated on the lower fire.

Garcia said the firefighters stayed until after 4 a.m. working on overhaul and salvage.

He added that the firefighters were forced to remove the ceiling due to heat and water damage.

Hate your name? Join the club.

Isn't it amazing what an accent can do?

It was an accent that finally snapped me out of my name-hating mold. Like most kids, I went through a phase when I hated my name. It took me several years to outgrow that once and for all, though.

It started when I was in third grade. One day I made the mistake of wondering what name I'd most like to have if I weren't named Traci.

For two years I pretended my name was Candi or Cyndi or Debbi or Wendi or some other name along those lines whenever I could. When my friends and I got together on the school playground and began making believe we were alien princesses with awesome powers and handsome heroes to rescue us when we got into distress, I'd appropriate one of my other names to use. I even considered going to court to change my name, but found out I'd have to wait until I was an adult to do it. That, I decided, was too long to wait. To an eight-year-old, 10 years is an eternity.

Although I eventually out- melt all nine of us girls, despite grew actively hating my name, I never really came to like it until my senior year in high school.

But my senior year, all that changed when the French Club went to Canada for spring break. I was a member of the club, so I went too.

While there, we met two college students named Guy and

There were 10 of us. Nine were female, and these two students were nice looking.

Guy was Canadian and Francois was French. So as we talked, they compared differences between French French and Canadian French.

It was very interesting, and Francois' accent was enough to

April offers many points of historical interest

There are only four more days left in the month of April, 1990. Reviewing some of our April history is both interesting and entertaining.

Quoting from Chase's "Annu-Event" we are reminded that on April 10, 1849, Walter Hunt of New York patented the safety pin. On April 12, 1945, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, 32nd President of the United States, died of a cerebral hemorrhage.

On April 9, 1939 Marian Anderson's Easter Concert, sung in open air from the steps of the Lincoln Memorial in Washingtin, D.C. to an audience of 75,000 people, brought about the shocking "antidiscrimination" action resulting in the resignation from the Daughters of the American Revolution of Eleanor Roosevelt (wife of the President of the United States).

Quoting from Chase's account: "After having been denied the use of the DAR Constitution Hall, Black American contralto Marion Anderson sang in open air concert." The incident created hard feelings throughout the nation.

The most important April happening took place on April 30, 1803 and was known as The Louisiana Purchase. Quoting from a small book called Pick Ups we learned that Napoleon was desperately in need of money and this enormous territory was bought at a cost of about four cents per acre! The late historian S. G. Thigpen of Picayune in his book "Pearl River Highway to Glory Land," wrote: "To prevent the seizure of all this great territory by the British, Napoleon sold Louisiana to the United States on April 30, 1803. Under the Louisiana Purchase the United States claimed all this coastal region of South Mississippi and on over eastward to the Perdido River.'

Thigpen's book treats Hancock County with authority. It is interesting to note that land tenures were held in as many as 22 different names!

Thigpen says: "The United States settled most of the disputes by refusing to recognize all the old claims granted by the Spanish, British and French. The United States recognized as owners and granted patents to those who lived on the land and were using the land."

He reported, "They refused to recognize large claims such as the one to Simon Favre for all of Honey Island."

I was impressed Sunday afternoon with the gusto with which the GE Plastic's employees worked at the Hancock County Fitness Trail.

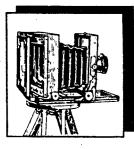

It was a family affair for the GE force with all ages pitching in on the planting of flower beds and hauling dirt for the leveling of the shoulders of the track.

"Mother Nature" helped a bit too with the good shower Sunday evening in watering the new plants and packing the soil alongside the track.

It always surprises me to see the amount of work which can be done by team effort.

The Walking Track is coming along really fine now, and there are only a few loads of dirt needed to finish the leveling of the entire track.

Wouldn't it be good if some other group or organization would volunteer to put the finishing touches on the much used facility?

To the Editor:

I am writing due to the current controversy regarding gill net fishing in Hancock County.

For many gill net fishermen, this activity is a means of supplemental income. Further, it provides availability of freshcaught fish to many people.

There appear to be numerous pros and cons on this matter. Unfortunately, we see published through our local media only negative opinions. This raises questions regarding the proficiency used in conducting these polls. Further, it raises the question as to the polled subjects' knowledge and/or involvement in this activity.

To support their attitudes and personal opinions, the opposition is integrating and advancing violations of law such as littering and urinating on the beachfront. Some are also advancing the fear of endangerment to swimmers and boaters.

In this regard, existing laws dictate that all such nets be visibly marked with buoys. Therefore, any endangerment is done

Why single out one activity that is practiced on "our beachfront?" To abolish gill net fishing for reasons that have been advanced, it would follow in moral logic that all other beachfront activities be abolished. This includes rod and reel fishermen, crabbers, boaters, swimmers, sunbathers and lovers.

The Walking Track gains popularity

Many skeptics are still trying to figure out the lure of the Hancock County Walking Track, or the Fitness Trail, as some folks refer to it.

The facility is used day and night by folks of all ages, most trying to get in a little exercise while burning off a few calories.

A lot of planning and effort has gone into the facility by our officials as well as the general public. The recent efforts by the Bay-Waveland Garden Club and Hancock County Chamber of Commerce to landscape the facility are progressing very well.

Elected officials, organizations, clubs, groups, industries and businesses have donated supplies, money, specific items such as benches, labor and 'tender loving care,' to help make the Walking Track a facility many Hancock Countians can be proud of and at the same time say, "I have been a part of it."

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is now in the process of expanding parking facilities to handle the number of vehicles.

On Monday evening, for instance, there were 26 vehicles parked around the track at one time.

Exercisers come in families, groups and individuals; some walk at specific times, many come each day, while others come out three or four times a week The best asset for those exercising is the fact that everyone can walk at his own pace and distance. If you haven't been to the Walking Track, you may want to try it yourself.

As a farmer in Hancock County, I am proud of the relationship that farmers have with the environment. We respect the environment, because it is the land, the water and the air that allows us to produce our crops and raise our livestock.

As we work within the environment, we have a strong desire to pass it along to the next generation of farmers in better shape than it was when we began.

We are pleased that society is becoming more respectful of the environment and does celebrate special Earth Day observances. However, farmers celebrate Earth Daymore often, at a more personal level.

Our view of the environment is not as utopian as that held by many environmentalists or celebrities. It appears some of those people practically worship the land. We worship God and respect the land.

Without quoting a large number of statistics, let me simply say that the farmers of this nation contribute greatly to improving the quality of our environment. They do this while still producing the quality and quantity of food, at a reasonable price, for the consuming public.

Farmers are continuously modifying their farming techniques in response to environmental needs. After all, we do live on the same Earth, drink the same water and breathe the same air. Rather than engaging in debate about the environment, farmers are taking steps to protect the environment. President Eisenhower once said, "Farming looks mighty easy when your plow is a pencil and you're a thousand miles from a cornfield."

Everyone who believes farmers are a part of the problem instead of the solution should take a closer look.

molasses! Although I'm not a vegetarian, I confess to being a "rabbity" diner of sorts. If it's green and crunchy, I might even choose it over a piece of meat; and when I'm slicing fresh mushrooms for a spinach and mushroom salad, other diners hereabouts are fortunate if they find even a few mushrooms in their salads; for I munch and munch like Peter the Famous Rabbit as I go along. A platter of tender-crispcooked vegetables, served with lettuce of various sorts, along with sliced tomatoes and touched with a tasty marinade, can easily be the mainstay of a Springtime dinner or supper, and ever so easy to put together.

Of course, if you're a bit lazy or pressed for time, or so on, you may of course substitute canned or frozen vegetables, but whyever in the world in Springtime? Here's:

Vegetable salads are colorful tight-fitting lid, shaking well, then refrigerate for an hour. Meanwhile, steam the vegetables barely, barely tendercrisp (you don't want them mushy.) At times I cook the vegetables separately, at other times I don't.

Arrange the vegetables in a large shallow dish and pour the marinade over. Refrigerate, covered, for a few hours, say at least three hours, or even overnight, basting from time to time with the marinade. To serve, arrange the assorted vegetables on a serving platter, draining as necessary, and garnish with the lettuce, as well as with sliced tomatoes, sliced green onions and parsley.

To make this salad even more substantial, I sometimes add sliced cooked new potatoes and chunks of bite-sized chicken or ham or roast beef to the platter. You may also use leftover cooked vegetables for this (if you haven't overcooked them, that is) instead of cooking them up especially for this dish. I often do, and you should see: and taste, some of the combinations!

And, of course, there's no reason why you can't use for the marinade bottled Italian or other salad dressing from the supermarket; if I do that I add a little olive oil and a little more "zip" to the seasonings-yes, I take shortcuts, too, at times!)

Coast Episcopal celebrates 40 years of teaching students

BY TRACI BONNEY

Hurricane Camille and other problems may have shaken it from time to time, but they haven't kept Coast Episcopal School from its mission.

Tomorrow, the school celebrates its 40th anniversary of readying lòcal students for college. It's been an interesting 40 years, according to the founder. and first headmaster of the school, the Rev. Charles Johnson.

Johnson came to Christ Episcopal Church in October of 1948. At that time, the church wanted to implement some sort of major outreach program.

Church members wanted to work with either the elderly or children.

'In the final vote, the children won out, so I went to the superintendent of the public schools and asked him what percentage of those graduating went on to complete college."

The percentage was low so Johnson suggested that the school district consider adding college preparatory courses to the industrial arts and home economics courses emphasized at that time.

The superintendent and school board seemed to prefer the current arrangement, Johnson said, so he returned to the church with his findings. The church decided to start a kindergarten.

In February of 1950, the first kindergarten class started with 17 children and Dotty Bartram as their teacher.

The parents wanted the church to add a first grade class and continue teaching their children, but there wasn't enough room in the parish hall for a classroom. The church solved that problem by renting the second floor of the local Masonic Temple and using it for first and second grade classrooms.

The parents were enthusiastic about the program, so the church decided to continue the school by adding a grade each

The church then purchased a 71/2 -piece of property on South Beach Street. This property had a gardener's cottage and a carriage house, which was converted into the school.

In 1956, the school built the school and 170 in the elemen, wants it here."

first half of the present elementary school, and the other half was built in 1962.

St. Joseph's Academy, which had been in existance many years, closed in 1968, and Coast Episcopal was requested to add high school.

The school bought property on West Beach Street in Pass Christian and converted the two houses on it into a high school in the spring and summer of 1969.

The work was completed just in time for Hurricane Camille to destroy it.

Camille took the high school and the church, and gutted the elementary school buildings.

The school, undaunted, cleaned and repaired the elementary school buildings and built single unit buildings on the grounds for classes, then looked for a new property in Pass Christian to buy for the high school, one that didn't have water on it.

The school bought some property on Espy Avenue, the present location of the high school. The building now in use was built in 1971.

At that time, the superstructure for a gym was built. The gym was gradually built over the years and was recently completed.

Johnson was headmaster of the school during all this, from its founding to 1976 when he resigned because of his wife's

Johnson had been both parish rector and headmaster of the school, but the church and school had both grown. "I felt it was time for somebody to take over the school," he said.
Paul Bode of Pass Christian was the first headmaster after Johnson. There have been five headmasters since Johnson At this time there is no headmaster, but the school is interviewing applicants for the position.

The school's enrollment has fluctuated over the years, as enrollments do in most schools. When Johnson left in 1976, the high school had 103 students and the elementary school had 200. Recent figures show an enrollment of 75 in the high tary school.

"Enrollment's down, but it's on its way back up," Johnson said. "The advance registration for most grades for next year is

How does he feel about the school he helped found and nurture for so many years?

"Right now is a very exciting time for the school, very exciting."

The high school principal, Linda McColluch, is a graduate of the Coast Episcopal school system. Betsy Grant, the elementary school principal, has some "exciting ideas," John-

From the early education through the high school programs, the curriculum stressed college preparatory courses, Johnson added.

The emphasis on college preparation shows. In the 1989-90 school year, Coast Episcopal's ACT scores were ranked fourth in the state among private and parochial schools.

The curriculum also teaches the students about God. Johnson said each school day begins with chapel, and there is on the staff a full-time religion instructor. This instructor does not teach doctrine, Johnson said, but only teaches the Bible.

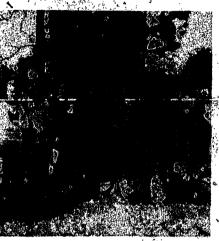

Johnson said, "I think right now the school has a great, future ahead of it.

"I believe with all my heart this school is here and will continue to be here because God surprises."

As secretary of state, Molpus oversees the state's public trust

In a landmark 1988 decision, Cinque Bambini v. State of Mississippi, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the public owned all lands subject to the ebb and flow of the tide that are below the average high tide line. The court directed the state to establish a boundary for public tidelands based on the earliest reliable historical records for the average high

The Mississippi Legislature in 1989 directed that the line instead be drawn on the 1973 average high tide, and a Harrison County chancery judge recently upheld the Legislature's position. His ruling will be appealed to the Mississippi Supreme Court by Molpus on the grounds that it conflicts with Mississippi and U.S. Supreme Court decisions and would result in an unconstitutional giveaway of public lands developed before 1973.

The map released today includes both the historical boundary mandated by the U.S. Supreme Court and the 1973 boundary mandated by the Legislature. George Cole, a Tallahassee, Fla., resident and nationally recognized expert on marine boundaries, drew the Cole has conducted extensive marine surveys for the state of Florida and is author of the book, "Water Boundaries." A special Coast commission appointed by Molpus to address the tidelands issue recommended contracting with Cole to work on the map.

Mississippi has an estimated 65,000 acres of tidelands. The map shows that 1,499 acres—or about 2 percent—are developed on artificial fill placed below the average high tide line.The remaining acres are all in their natural non-developed condition and lie submerged under water.

Of the 1,499 artificially developed acres, 1,376 are managed by federal, state or local government. The remaining 123 acres are under private claim, and according to U.S. Supreme Court guidelines are public property. Most of these 123 acres would become private land under the Legislature's 1973 standard.

Eighty-six acres-or twothirds of the privately claimed lands-are in Biloxi south of US-90. These include, among others, such well-known properties as the Broadwater Beach Marina, the Buena Vista Beach Club Inn and the Fiesta Lounge

In contrast, 29 parcels of property south of US-90 in Biloxi are not claimed as public trust tidelands because the land built on was natural, not artificially created below the high tide line.

This land remaining in private hands includes such businesses as the Quality Inn Emerald Beach and numerous restaurants, clubs and service stations nearby.

"We have worked hard to come to grips with and to resolve the tidelands issue in a manner that protects the public's access to fishing, swimming or boating on public tidelands, but that also deals fairly and equitably with those private individuals whose businesses are on those lands," Molpus said.

The tidelands issue gained national attention with the U.S. Supreme Court's Cinque Bambini decision in February 1988.

Following the decision, Molpus formed a 26-member commission representing a broad spectrum of interests in the three Coast counties. The commission, chaired by Gulfport attorney Hugh Keating, met for six months and formulated a comprehensive tidelands management program. The commission presented its recommendations to Molpus in January 1989, and most were adopted by the secretary of state's office and the Legislature.

Copies of the map are available for viewing at chancery clerks' offices in Bay St. Louis, Biloxi, Gulfport and Pascagoula courthouses; at the secretary of state's Coast office, located in the Hatten Building, 1400 24th Avenue, Gulfport; and in the secretary of state's Jackson office at 401 Mississippi Street. Questions and comments on the maps may be directed to the secretary of state's Coast office, P.O. Box 97, Gulfport 39502, telephone 864-0254, or to the public lands division, secretary of state's office, P.O. Box 136, Jackson 39205, telephone 359-1350

The public may buy copies of the map. The cost is $5 for a quadrangle or $50 for a map of the entire Coast.

The state tidelands law calls for a 60-day public comment period. At the end of that period, Molpus will make appropriate adjustments and certify the map in its final form. A determination of whether to use the historical boundary or the 1973 boundary will await a decision from the Mississippi Supreme

No current occupants of public trust tidelands will be forced off those lands, Molpus said. "They will be given first opportunity to lease that property at terms recommended by the Tidelands Commission," he

The ninth annual Law Day Legal Run-around 5K is scheduled to begin at 8 a.m. Saturday at the foot of the Ocean Springs-Biloxi Bridge in Ocean Springs. The course will take the runners to the finish line at Point Cadet in

The Harrison County Bar Association is sponsoring the event and Gulf Coast Running Club is hosting, so the club's usual age divisions and awards procedure will be followed--except that there will also be trophy awards to the top lawyer finishers in two of the age divisions in the 5K and there will be team competition.

A one-mile health run will accompany the 5K. Registration for both events begins at 7 a.m. For more information, call Lindo Sullivan at 832-6071, Bobby Ariati at 863-9821 or Robert Wilkerson at 762-0035.

Several local runners were among the top three in their divisions in the Harrison County Soil and Water Conservation District-sponsored run which was part of Pass Christian's Earth Day festivities over the weekend.

In the male divisions, Alex Brown of Pass Christian placed second in the 25-29 division with a time of 21:17. Bennie Sykes, also of Pass Christian, ran the 5K in 19:15 to take the top slot for the 35-39 men. In the 40-44 division, Dale Motte of Pearlington ran to third place in 21:54. Bill Morse of Bay St. Louis continued his recent winning streak in the 60-and-overs, finishing in 29:24.

JoAnn Mumme of Waveland also continued a series of wins in the women's competition, claiming the Grand Master title with a time of 36:17, and Melva Fisher of Bay St. Louis was first in the 40-44s with 25:01. And, a young pair from Waveland also took first places: Amie Geary finished in 25:29 to top the 13-and-unders, while Catherine Geary was first in the 14-19 division with 36:28.

There are a number of softball tournaments coming up. One of the local ones is sponsored by the Bay-Waveland Jaycees and is coming up on May 4-6 at Commegere Field in Bay St. Louis. Men's teams are being sought for the hityour-own-balls event, with registration set at $80 per

The Our Lady Academy varsity tennis team made a fine showing in the District VIII Class 2A tournament held recently at Bayou Bluff Tennis Club in Gulfport.

District high schools participating in the tournament included OLA, St. John, Lumberton, Lloyd Star and Wesson. After securing a bye in the first round, Kristy Heitzmann of OLA defeated Marci Ishee of Wesson 6-2, 6-3 before losing to Lumberton's Joanna Miles 6-4, 6-1 in the championship match of the girls' singles event. In girls' doubles, OLA's Jenny Keel and Kathy Cromwell pulled out a very close 7-6, 6-3 semi-final win over Heather Ratcliff and Shelley Smith of Lloyd Star.

Keel and Cromwell then lost to Sissy Kalil and Alexa Zupko of St. John in the finals by a score of 6-0, 6-0.

OLA qualified for the state tournament in Jackson by virtue of its finalists' showings in both the girls' singles and girls' doubles events.

Before giving your home a major overhaul, consider these helpful tips

The rite of spring cleaning is probably as old as spring itself. After a long, hard winter, the first warm breeze of the year casts our surroundings in a fresh light, and stirs our instincts to rejuvenate and improve our nests, to plant and make new starts.

The familiar environment we usually take for granted, its dust and dirt, suddenly become as intolerable as the thick wool sweaters we hibernated in all

If you are considering redecorating one or all of the rooms in your house, it's helpful to make some mental notes before making any purchase or hiring contractors.

Remember that every room has a focal point. In the living room, it may be the fireplace. In another, visitors might be drawn to the window. Always identify the strong visual elements in a room and be sure to complement them-with mirrors or matching or contrasting colors, for example-rather than crowd them or detract from their effects.

Often minor, inexpensive decorations can revitalize a room you thought needed a major overhaul. Here are some inexpensive, yet versatile decorating elements to considera

Lighting

Not all light bulbs need to be soft white, which, contrary to their name are rather harsh. Yellow or golden light is not as blinding and uses less wattage. Golden light even makes a nice substitute for candlelight since it provides a similar warm glow.

Rooms that are meant for relaxation rather than work should not have overhead or fluorescent lighting. Both tire Track lights are a nice addition to any room, especially the living room, where the lights can be pointed in different directions to illuminate artwork, photographs, or a bouquet of fresh flowers.

> Borders and trompe l'oeil

Decorative borders that run along the top of the walls can be pasted on in a short time. They come in a variety of motifs such as Ionic columns, floral patterns and trompe l'oeil, and are an inexpensive way to add character to a room.

Fabrics, glass and mirrors If all new furniture is out of the question financially, recoving or simply covering tables and armchairs with a fabric that matches carpeting and drapes might do the trick.

Wooden tables become elegant when covered with a fitted piece of glass. Glass shelves are a light, airy, unobtrusive addition. And, why not get more use out of your crystal bowls by filling each with potpurri and leaving them permanently throughout the house?

If one room or your entire apartment is just too small or too dark, mirrored tiles can be a solution. They come in a variety of sizes and colors and can cover as much or as little wall space as desired.

Or, to make a room seem double its actual size, place a standing mirror in a corner from floor

Tips for selecting paint colors Choosing paint colors for the home can be as intimidating as naming your child. Should the bedroom be gingham peach or saucy cream, the family room Windsor blue or Montana sky? Should the colors be intense at the risk of ridicule? Wouldn't it be safer to just pick out a sophisticated off-white-a pearl tint, perhaps?

These concerns need not discourage you. For colors you can enjoy and share, here are some hints on selecting paint shades. Best colors

First, identify your favorite colors. If no one single shade comes to mind, consider your favorite clothing, jewelry and artwork. What colors predominate?

Flip through decorating magazines and clip photos of room settings that inspire you.

Second, bring a sample of the shades you like to your local decorating center. You may wish to select color around a favorite area rug, fabric or painting. Third, make good use of the store's paint color displays.

An effective way to begin is to stand about eight feet away from the display and look for the range of colors that most attracts you.

Lighting is critical to color selection. Look for a display offering bright simulated natural daylight so you won't have to view color stripe cards outside the store.

How to use samples

At the decorating center, most paint is viewed on a horizontal surface with a white or off-white background. Remember that you will probably never see the color again in this way.

The shade will always intehsify when applied to a vertical surface. This is why it's important to "live" with the stripe card for a few days before making a final decision.

Some dealers catering to the professional design market may have available larger chips drawn from a designer library. Ask your independent retailer for expert advice on the type of paint you need.

Researching the requirements for completing a restoration project will help prepare a homeowner mentally, physically and financially to see the project through to the end.

Giving a salvageable old building new life can be worth the sacrifices. A properly renovated home can be an excellent investment and charming home. But the wrong choice of materials or the destruction of certain architectural details can distort the character of the house and affect its resale

Anyone contemplating the purchase of an old house should have the structure checked by a building contractor or engineer.

the point that it loses its character.

In addition to structural sags and bulges, check for dampness in the basement and pest damage before making any remodeling decisions.

After acquiring an old house, protect it. Fix any leaks in the roof, make sure the chimney and windows are water-tight and correct any additional damage in the building. Detailed restoration of an older home may take several years.

Do not do anything until a total plan exists, especially the aesthetic things. Plan to rework the house slowly, and do not over commit energy, time and Begin to bring a vintage home back to life by finding out the historic value of houses. Avoid modernizing a home to If the house is in a neighborhood listed on the National Register of Historic Places, homeowners are eligible to apply for federal funds for some restoration work.

A home restorer should be prepared to accept certain structural irregularities like walls that are slightly out of square and floors that are not quite level. Remember, trying to get everything back in line may detract from the character of the house.

Hire contractors who are sympathetic to your plans for restoration.

Find carpenters who like old houses and will not be frustrated if everything is not straight and level.

Avoid workers who want to modernize everything.

Once a renovation program is underway, keep accurate records and take before and after photos to document changes for future owners and for accounting and insurance purposes.

Avoid adding architectural features that pre-date the style of the house. Colonial features on a Victorian cottage will look quaint only to the untrained eye. In fact, such changes are an insult to the architectural integrity of a building and a sure way to devalue a fine old home.

Avoid making irreversible structural or architectural changes. Removal of a porch, tower, cupola or architectural ornament, for example, is irrevocable. Replacement would be difficult, and reconstruction procedures, costly.

Do not use gimmicky "olde style" materials. Although good reproduction materials are available, many items on the market should be avoided such as "handhewn" look beans of styrofoam or "Colonial style" aluminum doors.

Do not buy items that are stylistically incorrect for the house just because the hardware store had nothing more suitable. Special orders can be placed through most building supply dealers, and there are firms that specialize in restoration products and offer catalogs of their stock.

Research is the key before renovation. Obtaining the history of a building may require some legwork, but the information can usually be found in town maps, old photos, newspapers, newsletters or even in the memories of older neighbors.

Visit restored homes to capture a sense of the architectural period. Once a homeowner knows what will be needed to recapture the true character of the home, a subscription to an old house periodical can furnish restoration techniques, a list of supplies and a catalog of manufacturers whose products have been screened for quality.

To find original items, visit salvage operations that may have bricks, doors, windows, hardware and bathroom fixtures for sale. Frequent antique stores and auctions, and let the dealers know specific needs.

To purchase inexpensive handtools, make a fairly regular check of discount hardware stores and job lot outlets in the state.

Doing the necessary homework before the housework begins can save money and the house. It also shows that even if someone else is up on the roof shouting orders, the homeowner is actually the one who is really on top of the project.

Public Notice No. 90A-MS-003
G. E. Plastics, P.O. Box 2520, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, 3952-12520, has applied to the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality for a permit to construct two new Styrene-Acrylonitrile (SAN) Production lines and an Acrylonitrile-Butadiene-Styrene (ABS) Plastic Finishing Process at its existing facility in the Port Blenville Industrial Park in Hancock County. The emissions of concern include strene and acrylonitrile, which are known or suspected carcinogens. This facility is assigned Enrile No. 1000-0007, and the operation which are known or suspected carcinogens. This facility is assigned Facility No. 1000-00007, and the operation generally falls under Standard Industrial Classification Code (SIC) 2821.

The environmental impact of the project has been evaluated and the staff of the Department believes that, with proper environmental constraints and limitations on G. E. Plastics, this project will operate within all State and Federal environmental laws and standards and will protect health and welfare. Therefore, the staff of the Board has preliminarily decided, based on available information, to recommend to the Board that a permit be issued contraining numerous environmental regulatory constraints specifically stated in the draft permit. However, before proceeding further with the staff evaluation, public comments are being solicited. Every day is Earth Day in local schoolsas hundreds of students focus on protecting our environment on a daily basis.

Among schools with environmental awareness projects are Bay High School, under the direction of Brenda Jackson; Gulfview Elementary, Vern Halferty; Hancock North Central, Betty Allen; Our Lady Academy,

Our Lady Academy took top honors, but GE Plastics spokesman Toni Larroux contended all schools were winners.

"The enthusiasm was wonderful," said

The following projects were implemented:

Bay Senior High School:

-Students visited Bay Middle School,

Bay High students landscape

Amy Poole and Theresa Braud; St. Clare, Harriet Bellone; St. Stanislaus, Cecil Spotswood; and Trinity Christian Academy.

A GE Plastics sponsored competition drew 16 project entries from the schools, with 194 students participating. Many of the projects entered were ongoing activities, such as recycling drives or cleanups.

going class-to-class to discuss pollution and recycling. Suggestions received were displayed on a "Tree of Suggestions". Pamphlets and bumper stickers were distributed.

A contest was sponsored among sixth grades to encourage recycling. Decorated boxes were placed in rooms, and the winning class was treated to a pizza party.

St. Stanislaus clean up crew

—Some 200 signatures were accumulated on a petition asking persons to protect the environment

-A poster was designed for the Middle School to remind children of the importance of not polluting. A commercial was made to heighten awareness of the effects of chemicals (such as flurocarbons) on the environment.

Gulfview Elementary The south edge of BaySide Park Subdivision was cleaned, with 31 bags of trash collected. Students spoke to 25-30 residents along the way and were commended for their efforts.

-Following exams, participants plan to plant flower beds and trees on the Gulfview campus.

Hancock North Central

-The Student Council adopted two miles of Highway 603, gathering more than 50 bags of litter on their first clean-up day. They hope to expand the project to include the entire student body and plan to recycle the trash collected.

-Participated in National Trash Bash '90 in March. Twenty-five bags of trash were collected.

Our Lady Academy

-More than 3,000 pounds of newspaper were collected for recycling by students who placed advertisements, picked up and delivered papers to recycling center. Proceeds were donated to the Hancock County Food

-- An activity book was designed for younger children to learn about destruction of the earth. Seventeen environmental organizations were contacted and a local printer donated 300 copies, which were distributed to young children.

-Each class planted an Arizona Ash tree donated by a local nursery.

-Students wrote a script and songs for a film they created to heighten community environmental awareness. A logo was designed, "Save the Earth's Environment." -Aluminum cans were collected for -Solicited a local grocery store for donation of 300 paper bags and sponsored a bag design contest in conjunction with Earth Day. Bags were used by the grocery store during. Earth Week and the winning bags were displayed at Stennis Space Center.

St. Clare

-Participants composed an awareness letter which each student took to five homes in his neighborhood.

-Twice weekly, students picked up recyclable materials and brought them to school where they were transported to a recycling

-All students were invited to participate in a Beach Clean-Up Day.

-Prepared a radio spot to be broadcast as a public service on WBSL

-Made a video about students' ideas about trash with copies taken to Bay and Waveland city halls.

-Sponsored "Trek For Trees", where students solicit pledges with proceeds to purchase pieces of land in Tropical Rain Forest.

St. Stanislaus

-Helped senior citizens clean up their yards by mowing, raking, spreading shells, removing dead trees and refuse. Will be a continuing project.

-Sponsored Earth Day Dance. Educational materials coordinated for preparation of posters. The group raised $470 for the Earth Day Festival.

-City Park at Julia Street and Dunbar Avenue was cleaned up. Group will adopt Seventh Street Park and maintain it year-

-Earth Day Green Pledge cards were distributed to 54. —Coordinated student assembly to educate on local environmental issues. Mississippi Mamas, local environmentalist singing duo, entertained.

-Recycling aluminum cans, thus far 452

-Requested discontinued use of polystyrene cups and plates on campus.

Trinity Christian Academy

-Students participated in environmental awareness essay and began a recycling awareness project.

Bay-Waveland Garden Club coordinates Earth Day beautification activities

Special to the Echo

The action was on Hwy. 90 Sunday at the entrance sign to the Hancock Medical Center and the Hancock County Fitness Trail, and Hancock County is the richer and more beautiful because of the landscape beautification by GE Plastics.

What a group of busy workers, digging, weeding and planting—all with bright blue shirts with "GE is Me" written

"It was wonderful to see everyone busy helping, even the small children moving the large dirt pile to fill around other flower beds," said Alyce Newkirk, publicity chairman.
"Our many thanks to all employees and to Ken Woodring, plant manager, for just great cooperation. Toni Larroux is communications chairperson for GE, and believe me, words and actions were loud and Hilda Bourg, Hancock County Parks and Recreation chairman, was there with a crew to do whatever was needed, especially to water the plants. A water line and a faucet for this area is number one on Hilda's long list of things needed.

Bay-Waveland Garden Club was represented by its president, Nanette Murphree, who helped select the plants purchased and furnished by GE.

Meantime, the Garden Center on Leonhard Avenue, Alyce Newkirk, garden club tree chairman, presented Certificates of Registration to sponsors of some of the city's largest oak trees.

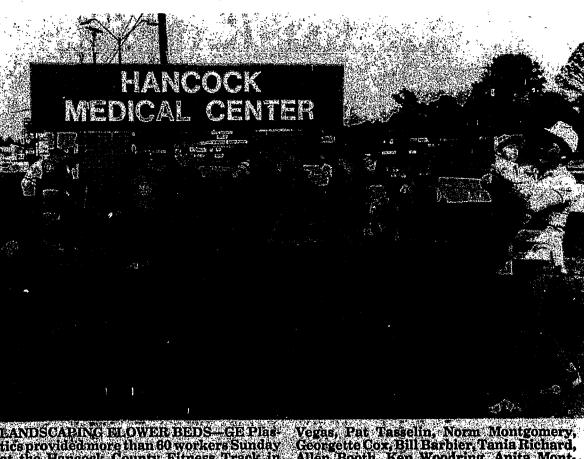

Identification plaques will be ordered for each registered tree on request. Applications for registration of other oaks are available upon request.

An educational exhibit was on display about the history of oaks on the Gulf Coast. Newspaper clippings and notices about trees were shown with particular emphasis about the danger in not being on guard to protect the natural beauty of the Gulf Coast.

Bringing an end to a perfect day, the Girl Scouts were busy planting trees on the grounds of the Bay-Waveland Garden

Brownie Scout Troop 404 of Waveland, Judie Ferry, leader; Brownie Scout Troop 293 of Gulfview, Sandy Nelson, leader; and garden club special project chairman Alice Holmes planted a Crabapple tree purchased with proceeds from recycling and a Red Buckeye tree donated by Lydia's Audubon Shoppe.

Thanks were extended to BWGC honorary members Jack Newkirk and John Holmes, who make the club's projects easier by knowing what to do and how

EANDSCARING BLOWER BEDS—GE Plastics provided more than 60 workers Sunday at the Hancock County Fitness Track in celebration of Earth Day. Employees and their families volunteered to assist the Bay-Waveland Gerden Club and the Hancock County Parks and Recreation Department in landscaping the track. From left are Paul

Hancock Library observes National Library Week

"Reach for a Star—Ask Your Librarian" is the theme of the 1990 National Library Week, sponsored annually by the American Library Association. This year's event has been set for April 22-28 at libraries across the country to remind people of the importance of all types of libraries to the informational and recreational needs of their communities.

. The Hancock County Library System will be recognizing National Library Week by providing bookmarks, book bags and other free material during the week at all three branches of the system—City-County Public Library in Bay St. Louis, Waveland Library on Coleman Avenue and the Kiln Library on Hwy. 603.

In the mid-1950's, American libraries and book publishers became concerned about a drop in personal spending for books, while spending for musical instruments, radios and televisions climbed. The implication was that Americans were reading less.

To encourage reading and to family life.
eep books free and widely In 1957, NBC developed a keep books free and widely available, the American Library Association (ALA) and the American Book Publishers Council called together a group of concerned publishers, librarians, teachers and citizens. Thus, in 1954, the National Book Committee (NBC), a nonprofit citizens' organization, was formed.

Among the goals of this organization were to encourage people to read in their leisure time, to develop appreciative audiences for the arts, to enlist support for civic betterment, to raise scholarship levels in schools and colleges, to improve incomes and health, and to develop a strong and happy plan for National Library Week (NLW), the first intensive campaign to promote reading. Individual cities and states had sponsored library weeks in previous years with great success.

During the week of March 16-22, 1958, the United States and Canada were advised to "Wake Up and Read!" The activities for this week had been planned by NBC in cooperation with ALA through local and state committees. The advertising Council had approved NLW as a public service campaign, and President Dwight Eisenthe people of the United States. More than 5,000 cities and towns joined the celebration, setting library records in circulation and registration. In 1974, NBC disbanded, and the ALA's National Library Week Committee took over the successful promotion for 1975, beginning a tradition of bold, colorful graphics that emphasized libraries and information. In 1975. NLW became the occasion for Legislative Day in Washington, D.C., when librarians and trustees each year personally tell legislators of library needs.

ALA's "Information Power" campaign won two top public relations awards. The Public Relations Society of America panel said, "libraries no longer look dull; they look exciting." Each year National Library Week is publicized on network television and radio, across national wire service, in major magazines and by public, academic and special libraries, trustees, school media centers, library associations, friends of libraries and community volunteers. Millions of people are newly reminded of the importance of libraries to their communities.

Further information concerning National Library Week may be obtained by calling the branch nearest you-City-County Library at 467-5282, Waveland Library at 467-9240, and Kiln Library at 255-1724.

tems in Mississippi. According to Mark Bradford, regional audit coordinator, "The National Cable Television Association reports yearly losses of approximately $782 million per year due to cable theft.

This results in higher rates and less dependable service to our Mississippi subscribers."

MultiVision will conduct the theft audit in Mississippi through the end of June 1990. Mississippi law states, "Anyone convicted of receiving unauthorized cable service will be fined $1,000 or up to six month in jail and/or both.

MultiVision has set up an amnesty program for those who have been receiving unauthorized service by mistake.

For more information about this program, call Richard Thomas at 666-4070 or 1-800-239-6400.
